A NEW DODGE.

Hilary K. Adair, the western detective, said in Duluth of a wetapper: "The man escaped us. He had invented a new dodge. That, you see, is the trouble about the science of detection. The minute we detectives master all the old tricks, something new springs up."

It is rather like the story of the thirtieth butler. When you keep a cask of beer under lock and key in the cellar, only giving the butler the keys when you want him to draw you a pitcher, then if you make him whistle all the time he is in of sight. In this brand, you are bound not to be defrauded, eh? Or so, at least, it was in the past.

"Well, there was a man who engaged a new butler, and, as of yore, the first day he wanted beer, he said, 'James, here are the keys to the beer closet. Take this pitcher down and fill it. And mind you whistle all the while you are gone.'"

"Yes, sir," said James, and he departed whistling.

"The clear, sweet notes of 'Home, Sweet Home' floated upstairs for a minute or so; then they ceased. The master rushed to the cellar door, 'What are you doing?'"

"With a gulp James answered: 'Nothin', sir, only changin' the tune.'"

RAILROADS IN HONDURAS.

Extensions in Southern Republic Stimulating Commerce.

Consul Drew Linnard of Ceiba shows in the following report how the extension of railroads in Honduras is opening up the republic for development:

The Vaccaro Brothers railroad, now in course of construction to connect Ceiba with Porvenir, Salado, San Francisco and Santiago situated 25 miles to the west is expected to be in operation some time in the spring of 1908. Three spurs from the main line at different points will penetrate five to eight miles inland tapping many thousands acres of undeveloped agricultural land, while the projected extensions of these spurs will eventually reach the neighborhood of the valuable hard wood timber tracts located some 20 miles back of the coast line.

The completion of this first installment of the 150 miles of projected road is expected to divert the greater part of the marine commerce from the towns mentioned and centralize the bulk of commerce and shipping in Ceiba. Considerable impetus to trade and commercial activity is therefore confidently looked for by the merchants here, and a general movement toward improvement in municipal details, erection of dwellings and the ample stocking of stores is being made in anticipation of the expected boom.
